as we see it

On television, the theory seems to be that half an oaf is better than none. So when a father is written into a situation comedy he may be only part normal. The rest of him must be pure, unadulterated oaf.

The background for this rather strange circumstance is quite simple. Most program sponsors are trying to sell products to women. The shows, therefore, flatter women by portraying them as being much smarter than their husbands. That automatically makes the husbands dopes. Husbands are also fathers. Ergo: stupid fathers.

This being the week of Fathers' Day, it would be rather pleasant, as well as appropriate, if such TV bumblers as Ozzie Nelson, Bill Bendix, Stu Erwin, Charles Farrell and Paul Hartman, to name a few, celebrated the event. They would be doing all fathers in the viewing audience a favor if they celebrated by acting intelligent this week.

A child of an impressionable age often is puzzled by the difference between his own Dad and the fathers who appear on the TV screen. Dad, for example, can drive a nail without mashing his thumb, paint a room without messing the entire house, drive a car without cracking up. Is Dad, then, a real father or is he a too-efficient and terribly unfunny fellow a kid has to put up with in the absence of somebody interesting and dumb like Chester Riley or Stu Erwin?

To set the little minds at ease, as well as to help restore the once-noble institution of fatherhood, we respectfully urge the fine actors who play stupid fathers on television to use their influence in presenting just one show a year in which they act like normal fathers.

TV Teletype*

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

Those super-budgeted "spectaculars" with top-name stars will provide most of TV's excitement for next fall. Set for the LELAND HAYWARD series on Monday nights on NBC are MARY MARTIN, DAVID NIVEN and JOSEPH COTTEN--all on the opening show. And for subsequent programs, TYRONE POWER, HENRY FONDA and ETHEL MERMAN. In addition, ALFRED HITCHCOCK has signed to direct one program.

CBS' spectaculars, to go every fourth Wednesday night in place of Blue Ribbon Bouts, will be titled Best of Broadway, and will star outstanding Broadway actors in such plays as "Idiot's Delight," "Philadelphia Story" and "Boys from Syracuse." And MAX LIEBMAN, whose Show of Shows opens its spectacular season with BETTY HUTTON, has also signed FRANK SINATRA, new comedian DICK SHAWN and others.

IMOGENE COCA's new show, which goes Saturday nights at 9 on NBC, won't be a situation comedy. But it will carry a "thread of a story," according to NBC, and of course will have music . . . IMOGENE and SID CAESAR may reunite at least once next season, incidentally, as stars of one of LIEBMAN's spectaculars.

Pulitzer Prize Playhouse is being revived for next season. But it's to be a telefilm series, produced in Hollywood and syndicated to local TV stations . . . PETER LAWFORD's new telefilm show, to be titled Dear Phoebe, will star him as a reporter who writes an advice to the lovelorn column . . . GIL LAMB has finished the pilot film on his projected new series, Bozo, the Clown.

RAY MILLAND's Meet Mr. McNutley will undergo a complete revamping while it's off the air during the summer and repeats of the show fill in. HARRY TUGEND, the program's new producer, has several major changes in mind, chief among which is a title change from "McNutley" to "McNulty." Seems the original name confused too many viewers.

Producers of Jamie have decided to build the show around young BRANDON DE WILDE's growing-up process, a la Skeezix in the comic "Gasoline Alley." So don't be too surprised to see Jamie undergo the first pangs of puppy-love next fall as he wins his first girl friend--in the script.

VIVECA LINDFORS is the leading contender for the lead in ABC's Cafe Istanbul next season. That's the role MARLENE DIETRICH originated on radio . . . Atomic Attack, recently on TV Hour, may be repeated in response to thousands of requests. Civil Defense groups have asked permission to show kinescopes to their staffs.

Trade-mark, Teletype Corp.*

HOLLYWOOD

Dan Jenkins reports:

Desilu has sold its new JUNE HAVOC series, The Artful Miss Dodger, in record time. General Mills snapped it up and is putting it on ABC on Friday nites, replacing The Stu Erwin [Trouble with Father] Show. Another Desilu entry, December Bride, is the inside bet to replace RED BUTTONS on CBS Monday nites, immediately following Lucy. That's a Desilu show too.

NBC's The Medic, which is to buck Lucy next fall, goes into full production at American National Studios here next month. Judging from the pilot film, this show--by original Dragnet writer JIM MOSER--is going to do for the medical profession what Dragnet has done for the cops.

A number of sponsors are interested in the JOAN CRAWFORD, JANE WYMAN and CLAUDETTE COLBERT film series, but the stumbling block is the almost complete lack of good network time. All three shows will probably be held back until the 1955-56 season.

WANDA HENDRIX could have been famous by now, but she turned down the original My Little Margie role because she didn't like the script. GALE STORM didn't particularly like it either, but she figured it would get better as it went along. She was right . . . The Red Skelton Show gets a lift July 28 with the appearance of ANNA MARIA ALBERGHETTI. If you haven't seen her yet, see her.

Our Miss Brooks starts repeating itself July 2 for the summer run . . . McCadden Corp.(BURNS & ALLEN) plans to make 39 Craig Rice TV films starring BARBARA STANWYCK. Outfit has already shot two JACK BENNY films for next season . . . DON MARLOWE, the actor who walked out on a CBS audition because he didn't know the stony-faced audience was made up chiefly of CBS execs, invited them all to come to his night club opening and walk out on him.

BARBARA BRITTON goes to South Carolina this summer to do the JUDY HOLLIDAY role in "Born Yesterday" . . . JOAN SHAWLEE, who has specialized in sexy comic roles, plays a menace in an upcoming TV dramatic film because "I want to find out if I'm not my type." . . . I Love Lucy, starting in the fall, may switch its plot locale from New York to Hollywood. And the following season may find the show playing against a European background.

A recent dramatic film featured the portrait of a stern-faced grandfather who, although long since dead, still dominated the family. Characters kept pointing at his picture on the wall and saying nasty things about him. What the producer and prop man apparently didn't know: portrait used was that of HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW. Thank you, Aunt Hester, that night school education of yours has finally paid off.

He Has Plenty Of Reason On 6th TV Anniversary

This Sunday, June 20, Ed Sullivan starts the seventh TV year of Toast of the Town, a show which has persistently paced the industry. It was the first hour-long program on CBS; the network's first sponsored show; the first variety show to introduce guests from the audience and to integrate dramatic skits; the first to offer so-called "spectaculars."

On another front, Ed probably has done more than anyone else to bring Hollywood into TV—a feat climaxed earlier this year as top stars paraded before Toast cameras in an "M-G-M Story."

Concurrently, Ed has tried—never too seriously—to live down the "great stone face" label won early in his TV career, when he was leery of that

'Toast of the Town'—
From Budget Blues
To 'Spectaculars'

ever-present, all-seeing camera.

Ed should be smiling plenty this week, however. Toast's sixth birthday also marks five years with the same sponsor. Few TV programs can make that statement. As a special feature on Sunday, Ed is planning an all-star dramatic sketch, tracing the history of Toast and, inextricably, of TV itself. The talent line-up for the anniversary program will include Rise Stevens and Darvas and Julia.

In the old days, Ed had reasons other than camera fright not to smile. Under his original contract, CBS anted up $1,500 weekly to produce the show, pay all performers (including a full orchestra), and pay Ed's salary and that of his co-producer, Marlo Lewis. "At the end of the first year," says Ed, "I figured the show had cost me $378 from my own pocket. I had thrown back more than my own salary to get better acts. That CBS contract was real serfdom. Just say I was a victim of the small print."

Budget blues first prompted the camera's swing to the name guests in the audience. They, of course, came for free. "Some critics objected," Ed recalls, "but I figured if names make news, faces make news, too. Also, introducing members of the audience gave the stage crew more time to strike one set and put up another."

The visiting celebrities idea created an intra-trade ruckus. A theatrical tradepaper (not Variety) suggested Ed was using the power of his syndicated column to blackjack stars into appearing. Irate, Ed called a meeting of theatrical union executives and pointed out that, as a vaudeville emcee for 13 years, he had always paid all his acts top fees.

When Sullivan launched Toast, the movie industry regarded TV as a squalling, inconsequential infant. Ed helped effect a mutual cooperation pact as far back as February, 1949, when he invited Luise Rainer to repeat her Oscar-winning telephone scene from "The Great Ziegfeld." This required permission from M-G-M chief Nicholas M. Schenck.

Samuel Goldwyn later let Ed use film clips from "Arrowsmith" to highlight "The Helen Hayes Story" and from "The Best Years of Our Lives" for "The Robert E. Sherwood Story."

June a year ago, Ford's mammoth 50th anniversary show was hailed by many in the trade as TV's first "spectacular." It was followed several months later by a 90-minute Rodgers & Hammerstein extravaganza. NBC and CBS are now mapping plans for similarly lavish shows next season. But Sullivan predated them all in September, 1951, with his all-star salute to Oscar Hammerstein.

"I was getting tired of the straight vaudeville format," Ed recalls, "and wanted to inject something new before the audience grew bored. I decided dramatized biographies would be naturals for TV."

Throughout Toast's history, Marlo Lewis has been Ed's co-producer; Ray Bloch, his orchestra leader. Worthington (Tony) Miner was his first director but resigned to mastermind Studio One. John Wray, the show's choreographer, promptly took over.

And for the future? Ed claims he has no immediate plans for any startling innovations. Noel Coward will make his American TV debut on Toast next fall, but all in all, Ed is busy with week-to-week problems.

"We've done so well this season against Comedy Hour (Toast's NBC rival) that I don't want to tamper with our show," he explains. "But any time I discover the audience wants a change, I'll be ready."

TV, TV everywhere

In St. Louis the other day the president of the new Chase Hotel announced a different kind of locale for video viewing—underwater, through a glass window in the hotel's outdoor pool.

If fans will don diving helmets to watch TV (suggested shows: My Favorite Halibut, Tuna For the Money) they'll go anywhere, do anything in quest of TV entertainment. Artist Vince Hoffman suggests possibilities.

Vincent E. Hoffman.

Phil Silvers, as ego-happy TV comedian, snaps fingers at Judy Lynn in 'Top Banana.'

Go Away, Boy, You Bother Me

Once upon a time there was a bright young man who made the mistake of taking the play away from one of his elders. This worthy bridled to the point of publicly disparaging the young man and refusing to acknowledge his many good points. As a result, all the pretty girl flocked to the young man, and the elder gentleman didn't gain a thing.

This Aesop Fable has a modern counterpart in the attitude taken by the movies toward television. Because TV has become solidly entrenched in the American scene, the movies cannot ignore the younger medium's existence. Like it or not, TV has to be included.

So TV is being included; and that's where the disparagement comes in. Judy Holliday's latest epic, "It Should Happen to You," for instance, introduces a "TV sensationalist" who makes our heroine the butt of considerable public ridicule. She recovers from appearances on panel shows and other

◀ In 'A Star Is Born,' Judy Garland sinks to singing-commercial job.

TV programs, however, and marries a thoroughly nice young man, who keeps taking pictures of her with his 16-millimeter movie camera.

There is currently making the rounds a picture called "Top Banana," which, in burlesque parlance, means "head comic." He is portrayed as a real unpleasant-type character — a broad caricature of Milton Berle, if that's possible—and he springs full-blown from the brow of television.

Judy Garland is about to return to movie screens in a remake of "A Star Is Born." Early in the plot, Judy gives up a job for a movie contract, which fails to materialize. Desperate, she sinks to the level of doing a TV commercial—but she doesn't become another Betty Furness. That would be heresy.

THE HOLLYWOOD (OR DIM) VIEW OF TV IS MIRRORED IN FILMS

This unchivalrous Hollywood trend was forecast several years ago when Ronald Colman starred in a travesty on TV quiz shows called "Champagne for Caesar." In it, the part of an idiot quiz master was handed to Art Linkletter, who should have known better—and now does.

Even earlier—as far back as 1950—M-G-M got real forward-thinking and cast Barbara Stanwyck as a pesky radio-TV gossip columnist. She kept appearing on TV screens and making Clark Gable's life miserable until he married her.

Some day the movies may discover the likes of Edward R. Murrow, Alex Segal and maybe even Kukla, Fran & Ollie. This won't happen until a long, hot day in January, however. TV is still a menace to the movie box office, and as such is hardly a fit subject for congratulatory back slapping.

◀ Jack Lemmon boos Judy Holliday's TV 'fame' in recent film comedy.

Oh, dem golden credits

TV ACTORS LOVE THAT 'CRAWL' . . . THE SLOWER, THE BETTER

It's certainly not news that actors down through the ages have ranted and raved about their credits. If actors in the original Greek drama had agents, you can be sure each actor was constantly needling his agent to get his name at the top of the list.

In TV, because of the way credits are flashed on the screen, that matter of star billing has become one of the thorniest problems confronting producers.

The line-up of TV credits is "rolled" across the screen from bottom to top on a gadget known as a "crawl." The names of the cast and production personnel are printed in white on a black roll of paper attached to a rotating drum. A camera is focussed on the moving drum and the names appear to roll across the screen.

If the show is accurately paced, the crawl will run off on schedule. Ideally, then, actors and staff should be satisfied with their moment of glory.

What if the show is too short or too long? There are no complaints, of course, if a performance runs short, finishing a minute or two ahead of schedule. The producer signals the stagehand operating the crawl to slow it down in order to pad the show. When that happens, each name remains on the screen long enough for a viewer not only to memorize the actor's identity but to trace his family tree back to antiquity. Or so it seems.

But if a performance runs overtime, the producer has no alternative but to speed up the crawl or eliminate it. As one TV producer noted, "Whenever the crawl must be eliminated, you can always count on the most vociferous wailing from the actors."

Looks okay: stagehand checks the device before Justice showtime.

And, ironically enough, the actors are the ones generally at fault when the show goes too long and credits just go.

An actor's jealousy involves not only the position of his name on the crawl in relation to that of the others but extends to the size of type used. The actors' union provides that each performer be billed "except in the contingency of unforeseen circumstances," such as a show running late.

Otherwise, the billing is left to each producer's discretion. According to David Susskind, who produces the Justice show, for example, this matter of billing is as important to some stars as the money they receive.

Those performers who have established their reputations chiefly in TV and know the TV ropes are comparatively easy to deal with, Susskind said. But when they come from Hollywood or Broadway—ouch! "There is a nominal inheritance of the thespian ego from other media when they come into TV," he said. "Generally this takes the form of subtle insistence on top billing."

If there are two stars from Broadway or two from Hollywood on the same program, then the producer need only follow the movie or stage standards to decide which gets top billing. But if one of the stars is Hollywood and the other Broadway, there are no standards. "Then you must use real diplomacy," Susskind said. "I would favor the Broadway actor generally, because he usually has superior skill and is infinitely more reliable."

In dickering over contract terms, Susskind noted, some Hollywood personalities put an asking price on their services that is "frequently impractical and related to an antediluvian appraisal of their worth." No TV star would even consider asking so much money, he said. But there's a method to this seeming madness. By asking so high a price, the star is in position to bargain on his billing.

The specific names included on the crawl are determined by the producer. Since listing all persons connected with the show might mean using as many as 150 names, the producer must compromise to give credit to the most creative people. On Justice, Susskind has worked out his compromise in this way:

The first name listed is that of the author, since Susskind and his producing firm, Talent Associates, feel the writer is "the critical element in any show." Then comes the cast, which includes all starring and featured players. And, finally, the technical director, the scenic designer, associate producer, producer and director.

'Slowly, please': Kathleen Maguire sees her name on Justice crawl.

Good Girl Gone Right

Jean Hagen and Danny Thomas.

A NEW CAREER FOR JEAN HAGEN

For "The Asphalt Jungle," movie director John Huston persuaded Jean Hagen, normally a glamorous young baggage, to let her mascara run during a crying jag. This made for a memorable dramatic touch—and for a very unglamorous Miss Hagen.

After that, she appeared often as a frowzy good-girl-gone-wrong. Nowadays, however, she's busy with a good-girl-gone-right role. As Danny Thomas' TV wife in Make Room for Daddy, Jean plays a long-suffering gal with a neat ability to launch a scathing wisecrack.

A story, perhaps apocryphal, has it that Jean once starred on a radio dramatic show about a Broadway actress who is discovered by a Hollywood producer and signed to a film contract. Then, goes the story, a few months later Jean appeared on Broadway in "The Traitor," was spotted by Producer Sam Zimbalist and signed for a film called "Side Street."

By then, of course, her career was well underway. Chicago-born, Miss Hagen had migrated to Elkhart, Ind. —and to parts with a little theater group. To pay her way through Lake Forest College and Northwestern University, she worked part-time on radio. After that she headed for Manhattan.

Soon she was jobbing around in radio soap opera, finally landed a part on Broadway in "Swan Song." "Another Part of the Forest," "Born Yesterday" and "Ghosts" led her to "The Traitor" and Hollywood. She was the wacky housewife in "Adam's Rib," and the silent screen star with the screeching voice in "Singin' in the Rain." The latter part won an Academy Award nomination.

Often in a cast, Jean was married in another kind of cast, after breaking a leg while playing in summer stock. Her husband is ex-actor Tom Seidel, now an actors' agent. They have two children—Patricia Christine, three, and Aric Philip, one year plus.

Chicago Dateline

TV's Week: Lots of construction in store for WGN-TV, Channel 9 on your television dial. Following their announcement of plans to erect an antenna atop the 41-story Prudential Insurance Building (now under construction), comes word that the finished installation will include a 50,000 watt transmitter equipped to transmit color as well as black and white pictures, a robot-controlled camera capable of reflecting a birds-eye view of greater Chicago, and a high-speed electronic color film developer. In the experimental stage yet, this new system will be used to develop color film for the station's Chicagoland Newsreel and other shows requiring fast color film development. WGN-TV expects to begin transmitting from its new site late in 1955, although the building won't be completed until late spring of '56. New set-up will give Channel 9 its maximum operating power (316 kilowatts) allowed by the FCC.

Roble

Meanwhile, WBKB, which had been operating at one-sixth of its power since June 1, just completed its antenna construction and thus pacified many disgruntled viewers whose screens had reflected only snow, lines and blurred figures. They are now operating at 200 kilowatts and expect to be up to 316 (their maximum) within a year. WNBQ is also on the receiving end of complaints from their fringe areas whose residents are experiencing faulty pictures, due to an "interim operation" (in common terms, lower power). This trouble should cease by the beginning of July when Channel 5 expects to have its antenna completed and its maximum operating power, 100 kilowatts, in effect.

Chicago's Actors' Club will stage a Variety Show Gaieties Benefit at the Civic Opera House Friday night, June 25. Top Chicago radio and TV talent will attend the function.

Week's Highlights: Danny O'Neil adds a half hour weekly show to his schedule Monday (11:30 PM to midnight). He'll be joined in the informal music 'n chatter opus by at least two stars of his A.M. cast, Chet Roble and Nancy Wright.

BOB ATCHER

HE PUTS HIS RICHES INTO RANCHES

MANY movie and television cowboys are two-gun men, but Bob Atcher, top hand among all the buckaroos of Chicagoland, is one of the few that's a two-ranch man. The popular Western song star has an impressively-sized estancia in Arizona and a cozy homestead near Palatine, Ill.

Bob acquired his hunk of Arizona real estate in 1949, thereby fulfilling a long-treasured ambition. The ranch straddles several mountain valleys above Prescott, Ariz. Here on some 30,000 acres (mostly leased government range), cowpuncher Atcher raises several hundred head of prime beef cattle.

Atcher's suburban homestead is a horse of another hue. Called the Singing A Ranch (the name borne by his Arizona ranch and his newest WGN-TV show) it serves as the year-round dwelling site for Bob, his family and a stable of valuable horses, including Meadow Gold, his beautiful Palomino.

A Ranch in the Suburbs

Though only a mere six acres in extent, Atcher's suburban estate is a genuine ranch. Stables, corrals and a working pen are in evidence. Dominat-

Wanted: A Dragnet Fan Club

I would like to join a fan club for Jack Webb and Ben Alexander. If any of your readers know of one would you have them write me?—Paul Konrath, 845 South Stone Ave., La Grange, Ill.

Really a Bashful Bachelor

I was very thrilled to see the TV wedding of Mr. Peepers. It was so real that I began to wonder whether Pat Benoit and Wally Cox are actually going to be married. If not, to whom are they married in real life?—Karen Kuth, Delavan, Wis. (They both are married in real life, but not to each other. Pat is married to Parton Swift, Jr. and Wally recently eloped with actress Marilyn Gennaro.—Ed.)

Benoit

Where Did He Go?

Our favorite TV star is Julius La Rosa. We don't ever see him on TV any more and were wondering if he's coming back on? Where can we write him?—Marilyn Nicolini, Mishawaka, Ind. (He'll be back when sponsored. Write him c/o CBS, 485 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y. You can see him at Chicago's Soldier's Field, July 24 during "Star Night" along with many other TV celebrities.—Ed.)

Just Like a Bird

While I was watching Jo Stafford on TV it occurred to me that she might be just doing pantomimes to her recordings. Is this correct or does she actually sing?—Linda Swidow, Chicago, Ill. (Jo's program is done "live" and she actually sings.—Ed.)

He's Still Spinning

Could you please find out what has happened to disc jockey Bill Anson? He is a very popular disc jockey in Chicago and since he left WENR we have heard nothing about him. We always enjoyed listening to him.—Mrs. Margaret Murphy, Chicago, Ill. (Bill spins platters weekdays from 2:00 till 4:30 PM on radio station WAIT. He is now considering a TV song show.—Ed.)

Kindled Over Firestone

It is appalling to note that the dictates of public taste forces NBC to substitute Sid Caesar's antics for such a fine program as The Voice of Firestone. While laughter is surely a part of our heritage, so also is fine music. There are too few programs that offer music of as fine a quality as Firestone does.—Mrs. Hugh B. Marsh, Lake Bluff, Ill. (The Voice of Firestone has been picked up by the ABC network and will be seen on WBKB Mondays at 7:30 PM.—Ed.)

Maybe He's Camera Shy

I enjoy watching The Plainclothesman every Sunday evening, but I was wondering why they don't ever show the lieutenant's face. I think it would be much better if we got to see him, at least, occasionally.—Bernice Mackaitis, Calumet City, Ill. (Ken Lynch plays the lieutenant. He is not shown because he is represented by the camera. Therefore, you get the effect of seeing things exactly as he does.—Ed.)

MEET Millie

SHE'S

ELENA VERDUGO,

EX-HAREM

BEAUTY

Quite possibly the most misunderstood female type in the United States is "the girl next door." It has been said that if she exists at all, which she doesn't, she is most likely a severe pain in the eye. There just can't be that many Becky Thatchers in the world.

Television, however, has come up with at least a reasonable facsimile of the girl next door—even though she goes under the unlikely name of Elena Verdugo. "When I was struggling along in the movies," she says plaintively, "producers would run across my name and say, 'Ah, just what we need for the native girl part.' You've seen those desert romance pictures? I was always the third girl from the left in the harem scenes."

The name "Verdugo," in point of fact, means just as much to California history as does the name "Becky Thatcher" to American literature. The Verdugos were the aristocrats of the pre-forty-niner days and Verdugo Streets still meander through one California hamlet or another, including Los Angeles.

But Elena Verdugo, for all her dignified background, is no lace-shrouded senorita playing real-life balcony scenes. She is, as stated, what we like to think of as the ordinary, unassuming, girl-next-door type—with certain obvious embellishments, of course. She plays the New York secretary in CBS' Meet Millie, and the new neighbors nextdoor to her Brentwood, Cal. home never had it so good.

She and her husband, screen writer Charles R. Marion, and their five-year-old son, Richard, just recently moved from Westwood, which is Grade C on the Hollywood social scale, to Brentwood, which is Grade B-Plus (as is Beverly Hills; Bel Air is considered Grade A).

"I don't mean to sound phony," Elena hastens to explain, "but this was the house and it just happened to be in Brentwood."

Miss Verdugo is about as pretentious as a rookie ballplayer, although she confesses to being able to put on an act when necessary. The only act she can't put on is that of being an actress. "Live TV," she says, "is absolutely terrifying, but you get used to it. The audience will never know how many times I've stood there on camera, my mind an absolute blank, furiously ad-libbing until I could remember my line."

Off stage, Elena is just a little busier than the average young wife and mother. "I really don't do much of anything," she admits. "Just shop and gossip and race around with my girl friend."

Elena's girl friend is Joan Shawlee, a leggy, bosomy comedienne who has made something of a splash in TV comedy circles this past year. "I'm always having to defend her," Elena explains. "I guess the fact that she's always sprinting off to PTA meetings and charity bazaars and practically running the community she lives in simply doesn't make good copy. She always comes out leggy and bosomy and she just isn't like that at all."

Elena and Joan, however, are inclined to be a little on the tomboy side when the spirit moves them. They were once thrown out of a movie theater for laughing too hard at a picture, and on another occasion disrupted a radio station switchboard when they appeared together on a local midnight disc jockey show.

"We figured nobody would be listening at that hour," Elena says, "so we just let our hair down and said all the things we've always wanted to say and insulted each other to a fare-thee-well. We discovered there were an awful lot of people listening at that hour, including most of our friends."

Elena bears only a surface resemblance to Millie, a role she fell into by sheer accident. A secretary she knew at CBS suggested she read for it. She did—and actually ran into her agent at the reading. He was there to sell another of his clients to the show, never figuring that Elena was the type.

"He was a little embarrassed when I got the role," Elena says primly, "but he was no more embarrassed than I was surprised." But she had to dye her hair from its natural brownette to a rather light blonde for the role, and it's a cinch Becky Thatcher never did that.

Trim, pert Elena was brought up in Los Angeles and got a good deal of her high school education at various movie studios. Her first picture was "Down Argentine Way," at age 14. She hasn't played a straight role since, up to and including Meet Millie. She is quite possibly Hollywood's most attractive character actress.

She is also a touch frustrated, although she is not quite sure why. "For some reason," she says, "I always want to be doing something I'm not doing, even though I know darned well that if I were doing the something else I'd want to be right back doing what I was doing in the first place. Or doesn't that make sense?"

The fact that it doesn't, doesn't seem to bother easy going Elena. The only thing that does bother her these days is the fact that Meet Millie was recently switched to play opposite Danny Thomas' Make Room for Daddy. "He's so wonderful," she says in a little-girl voice. "I suppose it's a compliment to our show that we should be put into such a competitive spot. But I could think of lots of other compliments I'd rather have."

WHO'S ON FIRST?

Lou Costello Has Been Asking Bud Abbott For The Last 17 Years

Practically everyone's chuckled at Abbott & Costello's "Who's on First?" routine, one they've performed more than 10,000 times during the past 17 years. Given the same material, can you get the same laughs? By publishing, for perhaps the first time, part of the famed skit, TV Guide now offers you a chance to find out.

ABBOTT—You know, strange as it may seem, they give ballplayers nowadays very peculiar names . . . Now, on the St. Louis team Who's on first, What's on second, I Don't Know is on third—

COSTELLO—That's what I want to find out. I want you to tell me the names of the fellows on the St. Louis team.

ABBOTT—I'm telling you. Who's on first, What's on second, I Don't Know is on third—

COSTELLO — You know the fellows' names?

Still another baseball problem confronts comedians Bud Abbott, l., Lou Costello.

ABBOTT—Yes.

COSTELLO—Well, then, who's playin' first?

A.—Yes.

C.—I mean the fellow's name on first base.

A.—Who.

C.—The fellow playin' first base.

A.—Who.

C.—The guy on first base.

A.—Who is on first.

C.—Well, what are you askin' me for?

A.—I'm not asking you—I'm telling you. Who is on first.

C.—I'm asking you—who's on first?

A.—That's the man's name!

C.—That's who's name?

A.—Yes.

C.—Well, go ahead tell me!

A.—Who.

C.—Have you got a first baseman on first?

A.—Certainly.

C.—Then who's playing first?

A.—Absolutely.

C.—Well, all I'm trying to find out is what's the guy's name on first base.

A.—Oh, no, no. What is on second base.

C.—I'm not asking you who's on second.

A.—Who's on first.

C.—That's what I'm trying to find out.

A.—Now, take it easy.

C.—What's the guy's name on first base?

A.—What's the guy's name on second base.

C.—I'm not askin' ya who's on second.

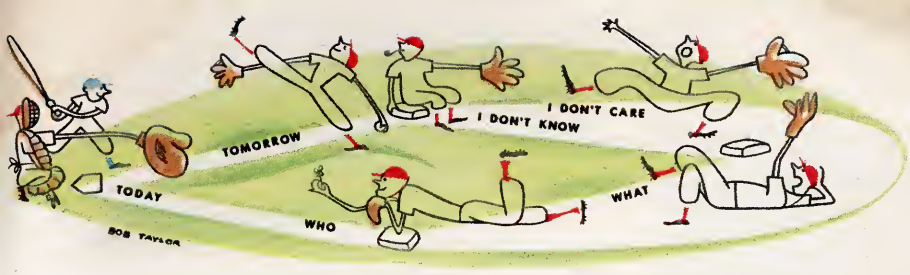
A.—Who's on first.

C.—I don't know.

A.—He's on third.

C.—If I mentioned the third baseman's name, who did I say is playing third?

A.—No, Who's playing first.



C.—Stay offa first, will ya?
A.—Well, what do you want me to do?
C.—Now, what's the guy's name on first base?
A.—What's on second.
C.—I'm not asking ya who's on second.
A.—Who's on first.
C.—I don't know.
A.—He's on third.
C.—There I go back to third again.
A.—Please. Now what is it you want to know?
C.—What is the fellow's name on third base?
A.—What is the fellow's name on second base.
C.—I'm not askin' ya who's on second.
A.—Who's on first.
C.—I don't know. (Makes noises) You got an outfield?
A.—Oh, sure.
C.—The left fielder's name?
A.—Why.
C.—I just thought I'd ask.
A.—Well, I just thought I'd tell you.
C.—Then tell me who's playing left field.
A.—Who's playing first.
C.—Stay out of the infield. I want to know what's the fellow's name in left field.
A.—What is on second.
C.—I'm not asking you who's on second.
A.—Now take it easy, take it easy.
C.—And the left fielder's name?
A.—Why.
C.—Because.
A.—Oh, he's center field.
C.—Wait a minute. You got a pitcher?
A.—Wouldn't this be a fine team without a pitcher?
C.—Tell me the pitcher's name.
A.—Tomorrow.
C.—You don't want to tell me today?
A.—I'm telling you, man.
C.—Then go ahead.
A.—Tomorrow.
C.—What time tomorrow are you gonna tell me who's pitching?
A.—Now listen. Who is not pitching. Who is on—
C.—I'll break your arm if you say who's on first.
A.—Then why come up here and ask?
C.—I want to know what's the pitcher's name.
A.—What's on second.
C.—Ya gotta catcher?
A.—Yes.
C.—The catcher's name?
A.—Today.
C.—Today. And Tomorrow's pitching.
A.—Yes.
C.—I'm a good catcher too, you know.
A.—I know that.
C.—I would like to catch. Tomorrow's pitching and I'm catching.
A.—Yes.
C.—Tomorrow throws the ball and the guy up bunts the ball.
A.—Yes.
C.—Now when he bunts the ball—me being a good catcher—I want to throw the guy out at first base, so I pick up the ball and throw it to who?
A.—Now, that's the first thing you've said right.
C.—I DON'T EVEN KNOW WHAT I'M TALKING ABOUT.
A.—Well, that's all you have to do.
C.—Is to throw it to first base.
A.—Yes.

. . . And What's On Second?

C.—Now who's got it?
A.—Naturally.
C.—Who has it?
A.—Naturally.
C.—O.K.
A.—Now you've got it.
C.—I pick up the ball and I throw it to Naturally.
A.—No you don't. You throw the ball to first base.
C.—Then who gets it?
A.—Naturally.
C.—I throw the ball to Naturally.
A.—You don't. You throw it to Who.
C.—Naturally.
A.—Well, naturally. Say it that way.
C.—I said I'd throw the ball to Naturally.
A.—You don't. You throw it to Who.
C.—Naturally.
A.—Yes.
C.—So I throw the ball to first base and Naturally gets it.
A.—No. You throw the ball to first base—
C.—Then who gets it?
A.—Naturally.
C.—That's what I'm saying.
A.—You're not saying that.
C.—I throw the ball to first base.
A.—Then Who gets it.
C.—He better get it.
A.—That's it. All right now, don't get excited. Take it easy.
C.—Now I throw the ball to first base, whoever it is grabs the ball, so the guy runs to second.
A.—Uh-huh.
C.—Who picks up the ball and throws it to what. What throws it to I don't know. I don't know throws it back to tomorrow—a triple play.
A.—Yeah. It could be.
C.—Another guy gets up and it's a long fly ball to center. Why? I don't know. And I don't care.
A.—What was that?
C.—I said, I don't care.
A.—Oh, that's our shortstop.
C.—(Makes noises—steps close to Abbott and they glare at each other)

FINE TUNING

By OLLIE CRAWFORD

Arthur Godfrey's horse eighth in its first race. Lord Willin' was willing, but seven other horses weren't.

He gained a lot of ground in the stretch when the jockey started hitting him with the ukulele.

Godfrey may even have to start another daytime show so he can make hay while the sun shines.

The Godfrey horse isn't a haybag, but he still may turn out to be a teabag.

Lord Willin' likes Haleloke best, probably because of that grass skirt. He figures this will be about as close as he'll ever get to a Native Dancer.

He's a real show business horse—when the crowd cheered, he stopped to take a bow.

It was the first time a race track crowd yelled: "Arthur, Arthur!"

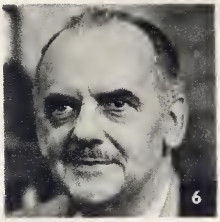
Godfrey's horse might follow in the footsteps of Bing Crosby's horses, but no horse follows Crosby's horses.

Telequiz:

The Role's The Same

The 10 actors pictured on this page have shared five roles in TV programs. Here's the game: identify the men, pair those who have played the same character and identify the program in which the character appears. Five correct pairs means you're a TV addict; four, you're sharp-eyed; three, better than par; two or less, more homework's in order. Answers appear at bottom.



SOLUTION: Jackie Gleason (1) and William Bendix (5) both played Chester A. Riley in The Life of Riley. Mark Stevens (2), Lee Tracy (9) shared title role in Martin Kane. Bert Lytell (3), Theodor von Eltz (8) are past and present Father Barbour in One Man's Family. Fred Clark (4), Larry Keating (6) were next-door neighbor Harry Morton in The Burns & Allen Show. Mark Roberts (7) succeeded Walter Brooke (10) as Bill Morgan in Three Steps to Heaven.

REGIONAL RECIPES:

In Twin Cities, It's Swedish Meat Balls

By Arle Haeberle

Miss Haeberle is the culinary expert on Station WCCO-TV, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Smorgasbord means "spread bread" or "the spread board"—a gesture of Scandinavian hospitality. And it's wonderful. You pitch into a tableful of appetizing salads, cold meats, fish, cheese, pickles, relishes, smoked sea food . . . and that's only the beginning. Save enough room for soup, fish and meat dishes, elaborate vegetables and unforgettable desserts.

My, but it's hard to name a favorite. I couldn't get our WCCO-TV staff to settle for just one, but Swedish Meat Balls rated very high indeed.

Swedish Meat Balls

1 lb. beef steak; ½ lb. lean pork; ½ c. chopped onions; 1 T. butter; ½ c. bread crumbs; 2 c. milk; 2 egg yolks; salt & pepper; 1 egg white; butter for frying.

Grind beef and pork together, using fine knife of grinder. Saute onions in butter until tender but not browned; then mix with meat and other ingredients. Add beaten egg white, then beat and work mixture at least 15 minutes. Chill 2 or 3 hrs. Shape the mixture into small balls, fry in hot butter, browning on all sides. Serve with or without the brown gravy.

SPORTS

Buckets of Blood

In a magazine article selected by Irving Marsh and Edward Ehre for their annual compilation of "Best Sports Stories," Mr. John Lardner deplores television's debauchery of the art of self-defense. His thesis runs thus:

TV tastes have rendered obsolete the lofty science of Mack Britton and Tommy Loughran, Jim Corbett and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

The golden-haired tots and shawled replicas of Whistler's Mother who sit transfixed before their sets want their fighting "rough, wild and emphatic."

Striving to please, the gladiators ham it up with the broadly telegenic punch, the splendidly sweeping swings which look impressive on the screen even when they miss. As a consequence, few of the television heroes are good boxers; and "statistics show that never has so much claret been tapped, so many knees been turned wobbly and so much coma been induced in so short a time as in the fight game under television."

Mr. Lardner unquestionably is correct as far as he goes, but he refrained from making one point which, had he made it, would have left him without a piece to write. That is the simple truth that the tastes of TV's fight fans differ in no particular whatever from those of the fancy in James Figg's day and even earlier.

Talk as old pros may of the glories of the old master, the evidence demonstrates that it was always the slugger whom the crowds adores. Thousands hated Corbett, not because he was called Gentleman Jim but because he was a boxer who had jabbed the face off their barroom-brawling idol, John L. Sullivan. Dexterous Gene Tunney met with a similar reception in many quarters because he had out-boxed tigerish Jack Dempsey.

The proudest boast an oldster can make today is: "I was with Ketchel." Why? Because Stanley Ketchel in his day had the quality that is most highly esteemed on television now. He was the Michigan Assassin. Around the turn of the century, George Bernard Shaw wrote that adoption of the Marquis of Queensberry rules made the knockout the goal of all fighters. Yet bouts were fought to a finish under earlier London prize ring rules.

Fight fans are and always have been a bloody-minded lot. They were so when William Hazlitt was jostled at ringside, and they will be so when three-dimensional color television brings Jim Norris' promotions direct from Mars to Mr. Lardner's living room.

Jo Stafford Show

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

Jo Stafford is the most recent big-name feminine recording star to dive into TV, and she has made quite a splash. Backed by Paul Weston and his orchestra (Miss Stafford being Mrs. Weston in real life) and the Starlighters, a male quartet, Jo makes her weekly 15-minute programs over CBS pass all too quickly.

The show's success stems not only from Miss Stafford's talents, but also from the fact that the producers have wisely chosen to create a visual production for each song. Sometimes the show carries a story line as a peg for the songs and sometimes each tune is staged as a separate entity. But whatever the format, each gets a major production background.

Miss Stafford, of course, has been a top-name vocalist for some time now. She's extremely versatile and can handle everything from a hillbilly tune to a dreamy love ballad. She's a handsome gal, with enough charm and warmth to project each number for maximum effect. She also mixes 'em up neatly, digging deep into the file of oldies for an occasional nostalgic kick and paying full attention to the current favorites.

The Starlighters backstop her excellently. Besides harmonizing well, they also know how to move—another prime requisite for TV. As for the Weston orchestra, there can be no argument. Thanks to some imaginative arrangements, it's one of the smoothest and best-integrated bands we have today.

Occasionally the maestro, Mr. Weston himself, appears on camera to chin with Jo about their family and home life. Adds a nice personal touch.

The Tony Martin Show

If there is more than a touch of similarity between The Dinah Shore Show and the new Tony Martin Show — well, Bud Yorkin, Tony's West Coast writer-director-producer, was for two seasons assistant to Alan Handley, writer-director-producer for Dinah. It, as they say in the trade, figures.

Martin, however, has yet to master the mood of easy informality which has made Dinah one of the medium's top attractions and which, oddly enough, has long been the trademark of Martin himself along the night club circuit. He seems particularly nervous when reading the few lines he's given, and the nervousness is reflected in his almost constant movement while singing. When he is standing still and singing, he is hard to beat. As it is, he resembles a fighter waiting for the bell.

Martin's best show to date, in fact, was with Dinah as his guest. She led him by the hand, as it were, and made it all look as simple as rolling off a log. She and Perry Como have long since learned the difference between TV and night clubs, a lesson which Martin will assimilate as time goes by. He has everything else necessary, including the voice and, apparently, the ability to charm the female gender simply by gazing limpidly into the camera.

Tony Martin: he gazes limpidly into the camera, much to the delight of females.
